Pembroke, March 1, 1880.

REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Your School Committee submit the following Annual Report for the year ending March, 1880.

Amount raised by taxation for support of schools,	$2,439.50
Amount of Literary fund received and expended,	150.96
Railroad tax appropriated for support of schools,	149.04

Total amount appropriated for schools, $2,739.50

For other particulars in relation to the expenditure of your school money you are respectfully referred to the statistical table annexed.

Of the seventeen different teachers employed in town during the past year, a majority were teachers of large experience and superior capacity to govern and instruct. We think the town never received more benefit from the expenditure of school money than during the past year. Our schools, with perhaps two or three exceptions, have been as successful as we could reasonably expect, and some of them superior to any we have ever known in town. Teachers have generally aimed to be thorough in their instruction, and in only one or two cases have failed to secure good order. There has been in no instance complaint of insubordination, and we are happy to be able to congratulate you on the general prosperity of our public schools. We do not attribute this general success to any efforts of our own, but mainly to the care and good common-sense used by prudential committees in employing experienced and successful teachers. Only one teacher has been employed who had not heretofore had some experience in teaching. We know of no reason why the same rule should not apply to employing teachers as persons of any other profession. If we are dangerously sick, or have an intricate suit at law, we do not employ the young tyro in law or, physic, but, instead, seek the man of talent and experience, who has acquired a reputation. If we desire to supply the pulpit, we seek the talented and experienced preacher. If we are about to erect a costly or splendid building, we look about for an experienced architect. Why not, when seeking to improve the human intellect, employ one capable of the task? We hope the time is past when men are willing to admit that any one who is out of employment will answer for a teacher.

We admonish prudential committee-men, in the performance of their official duties, to regard the interests of the district, rather than their own private interests or that of their personal friends.

We would call attention to the necessity of requiring a thorough and systematic teaching of the common and elementary branches of learning. There is too much disposition to introduce the higher branches of study into our schools; and, as a consequence, we often find scholars studying algebra, physiology, philosophy, &c., who are greatly deficient in reading, spelling, arithmetic, and grammar. A smattering of higher studies is a poor substitute for a practical knowledge of the common branches of learning. Parents should discountenance this practice, for it is highly detrimental to the educational interests of children. We have often thought that some parents, as well as children, were more anxious to learn that their children had been through the book, than to inquire whether they fully understood the principles involved so far as they had gone. We are happy to note the general interest parents and citizens have manifested in our schools. This has been done in various ways, by visiting the schools at the close, sending their children to school seasonably and regularly (see roll of honor), and by words of encouragement to the teacher. A republican government must be based upon intelligence, or it cannot prosper. To our common-schools must we look as the fountains from which the intelligence of the mass of community must flow. Would you seek your own interest, the interest of your children, or the great interest of our common country, then foster, encourage, and perpetuate our common-school system.

DISTRICT No. 1.

Prudential Committee, Chauncey C. French.

Summer school, Miss M. Ella Doe, teacher. Miss Doe is an experienced, practical teacher, and the district were fortunate in securing her services during this term. We only regret that they were unable to secure them for the two succeeding terms. Although the school consisted of young scholars, the closing examination was highly satisfactory in every particular. Promptness and thoroughness were marked characteristics. Closing examination well attended by parents.

It is a principle with scientific men, that the better acquainted the teacher is with the pupil, the better qualified he is to impart instruction. Hence, it is good policy to employ the same teacher several terms in succession, when a good one has been found.

Fall and winter terms, Miss Eva J. French, teacher. Miss French is a graduate of the Normal school, and a teacher of some experience, and devoted to her chosen profession. Harmony seemed to exist between teacher and scholars, and good order was secured with little effort. We think the scholars were advanced too far in their studies. Thoroughness ought to be the aim of every teacher. Owing to sickness and other causes, several members of the school were not present at the close; consequently, the school did not appear as well as it otherwise would.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Prudential Committee, James Dodge.

Summer term, Miss Sarah E. Coffin, teacher. Miss Coffin is an experienced teacher, having taught several terms in this town some years ago. She fully sustained her former reputation as a teacher. Closing examination satisfactory.

Fall and winter terms, Miss Emma J. Fowle, teacher. The school-house in this district has been aptly styled the "Dutch oven," and, as was remarked by an old resident of the district, on the occasion of the close of the school, "it bakes well yet,"—which, in every sense, is strictly true. Miss Fowle is home talent, a graduate of the Normal school, and ranks among our best teachers. The district was fortunate in securing her services. Every branch was taught in a thorough and skilful manner, and the school was in every respect eminently successful. There was a kind, sympathetic feeling between teacher and scholars, that made the old oven seem pleasant.

DISTRICT No. 3.

Prudential Committee, True S. Pettingill.

Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Mattie A. Lake. Miss Lake labored hard, carefully, and with good results. Although the scholars of this district are few in number, and mostly young, yet we found several who are fully up to our expectations; in fact, they were equal to any in town of their ages. She had succeeded in instilling a good degree of emulation. Several scholars, from seven to nine years of age, had given attention to the map of New Hampshire, and were able to name alphabetically, by counties, and readily point out on the map all the towns in the state.

Winter term, Miss Georgie E. Harvey, teacher. Miss Harvey taught this school three terms last year, and we are pleased to say that she sustained her good reputation gained at those terms. Although the school was small, she spent the entire afternoon, at the closing examination, in exercises which were interesting and instructive.

DISTRICT No. 4.

Prudential Committee, David B. Richardson.

Miss B. A. Currier taught both summer and winter terms. Miss Currier is an old, experienced, and painstaking teacher, who, during both terms, gave entire satisfaction, so far as we know, to parents, scholars, and committee. It is unnecessary for us to say more of her as a teacher, as she has already an established reputation. Her school was a model one in every respect. Several of the scholars, especially the older ones, are entitled to notice for their efforts to improve, and their success in that direction.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Prudential Committee, John K. Robinson.

Miss Helen M. Putney, an experienced and faithful teacher; had charge of this school both summer and winter terms. Her reputation as a teacher is good, and she did nothing here to mar it. Committee, parents, and scholars were satisfied with her labors. This is the smallest school in town, with the least amount of money, yet they have some good scholars, who have made rapid progress during the year.

DISTRICT No. 6.

Prudential Committee, Albert P. Fowler.

Summer and fall terms, Miss Genella L. Fowler, teacher. Miss Fowler had had but little experience in teaching, and having been a member of the school the previous winter, we feared she might not succeed in governing the school, but we were happily disappointed. We have rarely visited a school where more perfect order and discipline prevailed. She proved an earnest and active teacher, laboring hard and with good results. She was particularly successful in teaching the rudiments and minor things necessary to be taught in the district school. At the closing examination the school appeared to good advantage.

The winter term, under Mr. Charles R. Rowe, gave entire satisfaction. This is a large school, requiring talent, tact, patience, and perseverance to manage it successfully. Mr. Rowe possessed all these desirable qualities, and the result was a profitable term. The closing examination occupied an entire day, and in the afternoon was attended by parents and citizens, as many as could possibly be accommodated in the house. The scholars generally, in all classes examined, passed a good examination; but the classes in civil government, philosophy, physiology, geometry, and algebra were especially good, and elicited commendation. They showed not only hard study by scholars, but faithful and persistent instruction by the teacher. Nearly every scholar, at some time during the day, took part in the exercises, by reading or reciting either original compositions or select pieces, or by declamations. Several pieces were sung by the scholars with good effect. We think we express the sentiment of all present, when we say it was a marvel that so much could be accomplished in one term and by one teacher, and, also, that the parents in this district are under deep and lasting obligations to Mr. Rowe for the active interest he has taken in the welfare of the pupils under his charge.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Prudential Committee, Thomas J. French.

Summer term, Miss May Adams, teacher. Miss Adams having taught this school last year, felt that she was at home. We think it unfortunate that the district was unable to secure her services for the winter term. She succeeded in interesting her pupils in their work. Prompt and intelligent answers to questions were given. A class in arithmetic, we think, gave evidence of more thorough drill than any one in town. Order good, and closing examination satisfactory.

Winter term, Walter S. Abbott, teacher. This was Mr. Abbott's first experience in teaching. He labored hard and faithfully for the interest of the school, and succeeded as well as we could reasonably expect. At the closing examination there was a lack of promptness and energy, though some classes appeared to good advantage. Closing examination attended by parents and citizens.

DISTRICT No. 8.

Prudential Committee, Rufus H. Paine.

First Primary.

Miss Metta G. Gault, teacher for the year.

This was Miss Gault's first year in this school. Miss Locke having taught here so long with so good success, we feared the results of a change. Miss Gault entered upon her work with zeal and ardor, and succeeded admirably. Love seemed to be the predominating spirit in her school-room. We have been at a loss, when visiting her school, to know how she could manage to interest and so completely control her school, consisting of from sixty to eighty scholars, varying in age from five to ten years, very few of whom were more than eight. The amount of knowledge acquired by them in addition to learning to read and spell, the instruction being mainly oral, shows a vast amount of energy, ingenuity, and perseverance.

Second Primary.

Miss Anna O. Drake, teacher during the year.

Miss Drake is an experienced teacher, having taught in this school several years heretofore, as well as in a majority of the several other districts in town. We can truly say, that, in our opinion, she never labored harder or succeeded better in school than during the past year. The examinations at the close of the several terms were satisfactory.

Intermediate Department.

Miss Ellen F. Barker, teacher during the year.

This was Miss Barker's first year in this school, though she had previously taught in town. The school appeared orderly and the scholars studious when we visited it. She was careful and painstaking in her instruction, and labored incessantly for the interest of her school. The closing examination was satisfactory. The exercises were varied, interesting, and instructive.

Grammar Department.

Miss Metta C. Davis, teacher during the year.

This is Miss Davis's third year in this school. It is unnecessary for us to speak of her as a teacher, or of the school under her charge, more than that everything connected with the school has been up to the highest standard. The results of the labors of a thorough, careful, and conscientious teacher were apparent. An unusual degree of interest was shown by the scholars. Good order, promptness, and cheerful obedience were distinguishing features. The tone of compositions and selections, read or recited at the closing examinations, and the gentlemanly and ladylike deportment of all the scholars, showed that their moral and social as well as intellectual training had not been neglected. The friends and patrons of the school manifested their appreciation by frequent visits, and by attending the closing exercises in large numbers.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

Prudential Committee, Moses R. Lake.

Summer term, Miss Mary Philbrick, teacher. Miss Philbrick is a graduate of the Normal school, and a teacher of some experience. She is a live, wide-awake teacher, and succeeded in arousing enthusiasm in the school. She secured the respect and confidence of parents and scholars, and also of your committee. Her school was in every way a useful one, showing decided improvement in the several branches taught.

The winter term was commenced by Miss May Adams, and, when visited, appeared well. Owing to sickness, Miss Adams was obliged to leave the school at the end of seven weeks, when Miss Mattie A. Lake continued it four weeks longer, one week of which she gave to the district. The closing examination was satisfactory, considering the circumstances. Of course the district could not receive the same amount of benefit which they would have received had either of the teachers kept the full term.

PEMBROKE ACADEMY.

This institution still continues under the instruction of Mr. Isaac Walker, who has had charge of it twelve years in all. During the past year there has been an increased attendance of students. We think the school has never before been so well classified as at present, a large per cent. of the students pursuing a course of study with a view to graduation. An institution of so long and honorable a career should never want for a good word from every citizen.
